At odds

Mayor, council argue about appointment

By STEVE O'LEARY
ANP Staff Writer

Approxiately 80 people jammed the City Council Chambers last week to voice their support of Mayor Beverly McAnally's appointment of John Lewis as Romulus police inspector. Some council members are saying that McAnally brought in a "rigged" crowd, a statement the mayor says is false.

It appears that some animosity remains among some members of the city council and Mayor Beverly McAnally regarding the controversial hiring of John Lewis as the police inspector, the second-in-command position.

For the second consecutive week, harsh words were exchanged among the city officials at the Monday night council meeting. For the most part, the argument was a result of events which occurred at last week's meeting: quotes attributed to McAnally in both the Romulus Roman and the Detroit Free Press rankled some members, while others commented later on the manner the last meeting was run.

Some council members and some members of the police force expressed dissatisfaction over the appointment by McAnally of Lewis, a member of the Wayne County Sheriff's Office, to the position of Romulus Police Inspector, saying that the promotion should have been made from within the department. Council also argued that according to charter, the appointment should have been made by the department head, Chief Donald Flood. Flood had no input into the move. That was last week.

Councilman Jimmie Raspberry, who said he planned on questioning the legality of the appointment by way of the budget (which needs council approval to be changed), was cut off when the board voted 4-3 to amend the present budget by adding $7,318 to the fringe benefits account to cover Lewis' appointment. Raspberry, Pete Bergeron and Junior Block voted no, while William Wadsworth, Barry Baumann and Alan Lambert voted in favor. Mayor Pro-Tem Maryann Banks broke the deadlock and the motion to accept the mayor's recommendation was approved.

According to Bergeron, he became incensed Monday night when McAnally claimed that some council members were still upset over her victory over former mayor William Oakley.

"She kept saying things to that effect, and I knew it was aimed at me," said Bergeron. "I told her yes, Bill Oakley is a good friend of mine, and I was upset for a week or two, but my voting record shows that I've sided with her on most things. But not when she's wrong, as she was here.

"She keeps harping on Bill, so I just told her that she may have beaten him in the election, but right now Oakley's in a position (with the Wayne County Road Commission) that's twenty times more powerful than the mayor of Romulus. Which isn't to take anything away from the position of mayor in Romulus — it's an honorable position — but that's just the way it is," Bergeron added.

According to McAnally, the situation is a simple one: "I have made an appointment and the city council has taken exception to that appointment.

"I do feel that certain council members feel resentment towards me for beating Oakley, and they have admitted it. If their feelings are hurt, I can't help that. I have a responsibility and a duty to be responsive to the public and fulfill my charter obligations, and I'm going to do just that." said McAnally.

Speaking of last week's meeting, which was held before a rowdy, full house, Junior Block said, "I am very dissatisfied with the Mayor, She called most of those people to come to the meeting and carry on — at least, in my opinion, she did. She was just trying to put pressure on us.

"It's very sad, what happened," said Block. "I also didn't care for her remarks that we were against her because we were sore because Oakley lost to her. That made me mad, because in case she's forgotten, Mr. Bergeron and myself supported her from the very start, from when she first took office, with getting her programs passed. This was before her two buddies on the council even said 'boo.'

"I was proud to work under Bill Oakley. He didn't appoint his friends to positions. If you worked under Bill, you worked. Oakley, or even Terry Troutt, back when he was mayor, they never brought in people to stack the deck like what happened last week," Block added.

Raspberry, the target of much of the audience abuse last week, said in his opinion, "some of the mayor's followers misled a lot of people about the appointment."

McAnally denied that she called or brought anyone to the meeting, saying that the crowd was filled with "people concerned with what goes on in the community, and there's nothing wrong with that."

McAnally, Romulus Police Chief Donald Flood and the union president of the Romulus Police Officer's Association, William Davenport, who posted a letter at the station and sent copies to department heads, council members and newspapers refuting last week's article in the Roman, all say they want to put the issue behind them and get back to the business of running the city and police department as smoothly as possible, as does Lewis.

Dugan wins, Carey loses in Huron election

Huron Township voters elected a new township supervisor last Tuesday and insured that come November, a new clerk will join him.

Ralph Dugan defeated A.J. Haener, the current supervisor, and Harold Ashby in the primary. Since all those running were Democrats, Dugan will take over duties as supervisor on Nov. 20.

All three incumbents running for trustee won, and, along with newcomer Joe Prader, will be sitting on the board at least until the next election.

The only race not decided Tuesday was the race for township clerk, which saw the incumbent Mary Lou Carey lose her spot on the Democratic ticket to Doris Davis by three votes. Carey says she "probably will not" ask for a recount. Davis had 564 votes to Carey's 561.

Davis will face Republican Vicki Lyons in the November election.

Dugan, 61, was township supervisor from 1947 to 1953. He has lived in Huron Township all his life. Of the politics involved, Dugan claims to have "a lot in mind," regarding changes.

One of the biggest issues in Huron is the rates charged for water and sewers. According to Dugan, much of the inflated rates are due to the transferring of monies from the sewer and water fund and into the general fund, because while taxes cannot be arbitrarilly raised to get funds for the general fund, rates can be raised to pay more for water.

"I'm sure there is nothing underhanded about it," said Dugan, "I'm sure all of the money was spent on useful things in the various departments, like police and fire. I'm just saying that isn't the way to do it. In the past 14 years, I've only seen one water budget. I've asked — I asked again this year — and I was given vague excuses instead of a copy of the water budget.

"During my campaign, I heard more complaints about the water bills than anything else. More people speak out at board meetings about them, and nothing has been done about it. I told people I can't promise miracles overnight, but I gave them my word I'd do my best. In townships, it's the voters that really have the hands on the purse strings. Understanding the problems and doing something about them are sometimes two different things."

Doris Davis, who will run on the Democratic ticket in November, said of the election "we're very pleased that we won. We had a lot of supporters, and it was a victory for them as well as me."

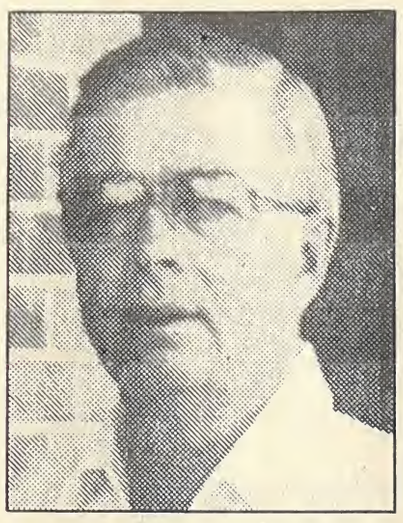
Davis, her husband Larry and their three children — Lori, Vikki and Michelle — have lived in Huron Township for five years.

"We won at the polls by 103 votes," said Davis, "498 to 395, but (Mary Lou) Carey won the absentee ballots more than two-to-one, 166 to 66."

When asked when her campaign for the November general election will begin, Davis said "it's never stopped. I want to continue to talk to the people and hear their concerns, and if I don't see someone who'd like to talk, I hope they look me up and see me that way."

Vicki Lyons is well known throughout the community for her work as president of the Huron Valley Citizens Association, and will run against Davis.

"During my campaign, I heard more complaints about water bills than anything."
— Ralph Dugan



Asked if she felt it was an uphill battle, running as a Republican in a heavily Democratic area, Lyons said "No, because I don't believe that in the local races, like this one, people pay much attention to the parties. They vote for the person."

According to Lyons, keeping the landfills out of Huron Township is one of the main issues at this time, but she says that she "would really like to get a better line of communication running through the community, to try and get more residents to attend the township board meetings and let the elected officials know how they feel."

Kosteva vs. Gramlich in 37th District

Area voters made their choices last Tuesday, and come November, it will be Democrat Jim Kosteva battling Republican Georgia Gramlich for the office of state representative in the 37th District.

When the ballots were tabulated, Kosteva, a resident of Canton Township, had soundly beaten fellow Democrats Pat Cullin and John Sheridan, while Gramlich defeated her only opponent, Theodore Jacques.

The numbers were as follows: Democratic primary — Kosteva, 1632; Cullin, 781; Sheridan, 382; Republican primary — Gramlich, 894; Jacques, 711.

Much of Gramlich's support is believed to be coming from those actively involved in the environmental issues, since she has been very visible, particularly in fighting against landfills in the area.

Among other activities, Gramlich currently sits on the Board of Directors of the Southern Michigan Environmental Alliance and serves on the legislative committee of the Michigan Toxic Dumpsite Coalition.

"We have proven methods of recycling and resource recovery which should be put in effect immediately," said Gramlich. "And in the meantime, we should investigate and search for even better methods. These proven methods should and could be instituted through programs that would not create problems for the state's existing industry."

"We have proven methods of recycling which should be put in effect immediately."
— Georgia Gramlich

Kosteva, who will continue in his job as Canton Community Planning Consultant through the end of the month, is currently serving on the Wayne County Solid Waste Planning Committee.

He received the endorsement of the outgoing representative, Edward Mahalak (D-Romulus). Mahalak is not pursuing another term for health reasons.

"Right now, I'm finishing up some things on the county (dumpsite) master plan and in Canton," Kosteva said. "I'm planning strategy and familiarizing myself with the issues even more, because I expect a tough fight inNovember.

"We're really pleased with the election results, and a lot of that is due to the terrific support given us by helpers and workers on the campaign."

Kosteva said that as of now, his major concerns are "meaningful tax reform and educational improvements."

"Right now, it looks like the major concerns are meaningful tax reform and educational improvements."

Do-it-yourselfer's dream house

By SUE McDONALD
ANP News Editor

Enjoy warm, country living in a turn of the century farmhouse. Attractive two-story home with three bedrooms, country kitchen, bath, living room and dining room. Fully landscaped. $1 could bring you and this do-it-yourselfer dream house together.

It sounds like a home for sale ad out of the classified section of the newspaper ... A country home with copper flashing and a copper roof on a bay window. Victorian gingerbread trim complements the fishscale shingles on the gable and a herringbone brick walk leads to the front door.

The large tree in the front yard has a swing for youngsters, and if you look closely you can see some pint-sized muddy footprints leading up to the back screen door.

It's a home worth having ... if you're into miniatures for this turn of the century delight is a dollhouse that is being raffled off by the Wayne Chamber of Commerce as part of Wayne's Old Fashioned Homecoming Festival next month.

It's also being used to draw attention to a home tour — miniatures, that is — that will take people throughout the shopping district.

Dorothy Siano, owner of The Country Mouse, which deals in miniatures, has been the driving force behind the tour and raffle. Many of her customers have agreed to loan their miniature displays for the walking tour, and she has been busy pairing up the downsized house or business with the appropriate chamber participant.

The displays — 54 in all- range from a child's tree house to a bakery to a saloon to a sewing room and barbershop. There's even a pizza parlor of years gone by that Siano is literally building brick by brick in the backroom of her store for display at one of Wayne's newest eateries, Mama and Pasta's.

"People aren't just buying one ticket — they're buying them in tens and twenties." — Dorothy Siano

"The idea is to have people come into Wayne and look, even if they don't like miniatures, at least they'll come and look," Siano said.

The walking tour will be like a scavanger hunt of sorts. A questionnaire has been made up, that to complete correctly will require seeing each and every one of the displays. For those who take the time and answer the questions correctly, there's a chance to win $500 in chamber "funny" money.

The dollhouse raffle is a spinoff of the miniatures tour. Although unfinished inside — Siano would rather leave the decorating scheme up to the lucky "homeowner" — the outside is complete right down to a push lawnmower leaning against the side of the house.

Painted in wedgewood blue with a cream colored trim, it has, as Siano says, "easy terms."

She has spent more than 100 hours getting the house ready for the raffle and secretly admits that if the winner of the raffle isn't into dollhouses, she'll gladly buy it for herself.

She has given the house an address — 1984 — although the name of the street has yet to be determined. The one stands for the first house raffled by the Chamber's Merchants Committee, the nine for the ninth month and the 84 for the year.

So enthused about her work on the home, Siano has even drawn city permits — electrical, plumbing, etc. — and is having it inspected by the appropriate city inspectors. A friend is shrinking the documents to be on the same scale as the house, and they will be given to the new homeowner.

The Chamber has printed up 2,000 $1 tickets for the raffle, and according to Siano, response has been so good that another 2,000 tickets may be needed.

"People aren't just buying one ticket, they're buying them in tens and twenties," she explained. "And they're not just from around here. I'm getting calls from as far away as Gibraltar."

Tickets for the raffle are available from merchants who are displaying a poster promoting the miniatures tour and raffle or through the Chamber of Commerce by calling 721-0100.

A home looking for a new owner . . . price $1.

Policy changes overdue

The Wayne-Westland Board of Education last week took a step to tighten up its policy pertaining to the reimbursement of expenses of board members incurred as representatives of the school system.

It is a step, we feel, that has been long overdue.

The board, in effect, has put a lid on ambiguous travel expense reports, which became the center of a dispute between two board members and district officials, who maintained that the former were padding their expense account for personal profit.

Much of that bruhaha was behind the scenes, but once made public, the two trustees contended that their actions were in line with board policy and past practices.

The board members admit that a "clear cut policy" covering every detail of expense reporting may be impossible, but the changes approved last week are a step in the right direction.

No longer will board members be able to make their own travel arrangements. That burden will fall on the district's administrative staff, which has been charged with the task of coming up with the lowest airfare possible for out-of-state functions.

No longer will board members be able to claim a blanket expense deduction of $25 per day. Every single item in excess of $24.99 will require documentation.

No longer will board members be able to delay submitting expense reports for reimbursement, or possibly dividing up a report to have half covered in one fiscal year and the remainder in another and make the amount appear smaller than it actually is. Within three weeks' time of the conclusion of a convention, that report will have to be turned in to the business office, and only after it has been approved by two board officers.

The changes approved by the Board of Education are not insurmountable. In fact, in light of the problems with two of the members, they were mandatory. Granted, they may not please all of those affected, but they should be pleasing to taxpayers in the school district, who, in no uncertain terms, have put the district on notice that they want the most for each dollar they pay for education.

The taxpayers elect the board to keep an eye on how their taxes are spent, but who is there to keep an eye on the board when it spends those tax dollars for the education of its members?

As it stands, the board policy book is that watchdog, and literally was asleep on the job when those two trustees sought reimbursement for airfare to San Francisco far in excess of what they actually paid.

Board policy, old or new, was not written to permit such an apparent duping of district officials and taxpayers; it was not written to permit the doling out of funds for more than "actual and necessary expenses incurred in the discharge of official duties."

The school board should be commended for taking such a hard look at its own policies. No document is chiseled in stone, and no document has stood the test of time without some sort of modification. Even the U.S. Constitution's Bill of Rights has been amended to meet the needs of a maturing American public.

How well will these changes work? That will remain to be seen, but at least for now, incidents such as those which occurred in 1982 and 1983 will not be repeated.

If the board hopes to regain the trust of Wayne-Westland residents, it must prove it is willing to take a hard line even with its own members. The changes made in board policy is an indication that the school board trustees are willing to take that stand.

Happy Birthday, Dad

He would have been 81 years old last Thursday.

It's still difficult for me to accept — but he has been dead for nine years now. It seems hard to believe sometimes that it's been that long. When you lose someone you love, they become ageless, I guess, in your living, mental picture of them.

My dad died after fighting lung cancer for more than a year. When he died, something in me died, too. Perhaps it was my youth.

Wesley Fred Willett, known to his multitude of friends and acquaintances as "Wes," was many things to me and for me. Dad was a tutor, teacher, mentor, role model and friend. We disagreed, he and I, on many things, but we concurred on many more.

A son learns many things from his father, what to do and what should not be done.

I had no intention of ever pursuing publishing as a career. Why did I, then? It was, I think now, because my father challenged me. He always said I took on more than I could or should handle at one time. He was right.

He was right about a lot of things. It's amazing, but I still turn mental corners and find an unexpected facet of his teaching. I still discover things about him that I never before fully explored or understood.

Periodically I will encounter some of his notes, a tape of him dictating a letter or memo or see an old friend. The "Golden Boy" restaurant in Wayne was a favorite place of Dad's. Annie, the proprietress, periodically brings up my dad in conversation. "He was a hell of a man," she'll say. A photo of Dad and the rest of the coffee klatch of the area hangs on the wall in the restaurant.

He was a friend, confidant and tutor for many. I remember seeing Roger Turner, one-time managing editor of these newspapers, about a year after his departure from Associated. He recounted his recollections of my dad. "You know," Roger said, "it's amazing how much smarter your Dad has become in the last year." Roger went on to tell me how he thought my dad used to do a lot of talking but didn't say much. Roger had since come to realize that it was more his receiving than Dad's transmitting that had malfunctioned in their conversations.

How often that is the case. Perhaps one of the things I learned from dealing with "Wes" was the art of listening. He knew how to talk to most anyone, but he also knew how to listen — and to let you know that he was listening.

Often, my dad spoke from experience — too often I could not relate because I had not "been there." He tried, so many times, to spare me pain by warning me. Sometimes, we both learned, you just have to endure the agony of defeat to understand.

How often I thought badly of his judgement, only to pause later to marvel at my ignorance to comprehend the depth of this incredibly brilliant and complex personality I called "Dad."

He was absent a lot in my boyhood years, active in business. It was only as I approached manhood that I began to appreciate and to understand.

He had a full life, my father. He had a family he enjoyed, a career that won the admiration and respect of his peers and the gratitude of the many, many causes he served in the community.

His family was robbed of him for the many years that he might have lived to share his knowledge and wisdom and unbelievable compass with us. His only real failure was in loving his family too much and he was far to quick to do things for us, rather than pushing us to learn to do things for ourselves. How many of us are guilty of that same sin? Far too many, I'd wager.

The inevitable shift in my father's life took place in his failing health — when he, in a weakened physical condition, became the one who needed to be cared for by those who he had always provided for and looked after.

Councilman comments

To the Editor:

After reading the front page story of the Aug. 8 Romulus Roman, I became quite upset, and am compelled to bring some accuracy to what transpired. As a Councilman in Romulus, to remain silent would be consent.

By the comments some of my colleagues made, one fact becomes very apparent. That is that they cannot accept the verdict of the people last November, electing a new Mayor, since they supported the unsuccessful candidate.

In true demogogic fashion, these "servants of the people" have seized upon a subject that deals with administrative functions of the city, and the duties reserved for the mayor.

Unfortunately, the writer of the article sought one point of view, and printed a totally distorted picture of the facts.

The appointment of John Lewis has not demoralized the Romulus Police Department. Quite to the contrary. As I mentioned in my comments, the men on the street approve of that appointment. Many were present at the Monday evening council meeting when Council approved the appointment. However, the writer did not get any comments because in fact they were afraid of retaliation.

They, as officers, have lived through the tactics of their superiors, who even to this date, totally are repulsed by the idea that the Romulus Police Officers formed a union over a year ago. They did not need to make matters worse for themselves. And too, rather than what was reported in that article slanted totally against the mayor, relations between the officers and men are much better than ever before.

Whether or not some councilpeople want to accept the fact that there is a new administration is purely their hang-up, but to create a problem in the community is disgraceful. Not to allow this mayor, or any administration for that matter, the right to set his or her programs in motion and administrate to the city's everyday needs is assinine and counterproductive. And to say that the Mayor has violated the Charter is nothing less than stupidity. The mayor took the oath of office to uphold the charter of the city, not violate it!

The Romulus Police Department is a good department, with many good men and women who staff it. This only gives these officers a black eye for their highly professional manner they have worked in behalf of Romulus residents. They deserve much better.

And so do the citizens.

I can only question the motives of Councilmen Bergeron and Raspberry. Such cannot be in the citizens best interest. And also, I can only question the motives of the author of the story.

I call upon my colleagues in the council to start working together with the administration for the betterment of Romulus.

Councilman

Willett commended

To the Editor:

I must commend you on the article you wrote entitled, "Black can be beautiful." It was the best article I have ever read. In my opinion it was a perfect example of what American journalism should be like.

I was especially pleased with the stand you took on the issue. So many people are pointing fingers and placing blame without knowing where the real blame lies. I think we feel the same way on the subject. She (Vanessa) made a mistake and unfortunately the consequences due to greedy rascals cost her the crown. But the fact that the incident did occur and that she was black, does not take away from the achievements of black women past, present and future.

Vanessa's incident is one that we all should learn from. It especially teaches young women my age to beware of seemingly trusting faces. One bruise doesn't spoil the whole apple. Vanessa's mistake does not ruin opportunities that lie ahead for her. Your article expressed this very well.

As a young, black woman myself, I would like to congratulate you on your excellent journalism. Thank you for respecting black women and their abilities and accomplishments. You are a true humanitarian.

A good friend

To the Editor:

Seeing that Sue McDonald is always writing nice stories about other people, I thought I would write a story about Sue.

It's too bad you don't have the woman worth watching column anymore because she sure would be a perfect candidate for it.

Sue is a very good friend of mine and a lot of other people. She is one of the nicest, sweetest and most thoughtful, generous people I have ever known.

I hope you people at the paper realize how lucky you are; of course you must!

Sue's stories are always honest and she is always way ahead of any reporter as far as facts. She writes the truth. Wouldn't it be great if she ran for the school board or even for Mayor.

Thank you Sue for being my friend.

As the Story-Line goes, this one's for you!

Supports police

To the Editor:

While reading the front page article outlining Mayor McAnally's appointment of John O. Lewis as police inspector I was struck by the quote, "... I get an average of three calls a week from citizens complaining about our police officers!"

While I think three calls a week is minimal for such a revenge-provoking job, I realized that most of us are taking our community services for granted unless provoked by some action that was probably our fault in the first place.

Mayor McAnally, please consider this a letter in support of the Romulus police force. I haven't had to use their services excessively (thank goodness), but I've found them to be courteous and helpful. They have been highly visible in the com-

How to control solid waste disposal? Incineration

By ULRICH BAUSER

(Ed. note — Bauser is the executive director of the Central Wayne County Sanitation Authority)

All around us citizens are banding together for protection of their families, properties, jobs, etc., to ultimately preserve the health and well being of all. We are all aware of these concerned citizens who have organized neighborhood watch programs, employees who have banded together to buy out businesses that formerly employed them, to save their jobs.

It is imperative that these same concerned citizens investigate another area of concern whch is facing us not only locally and nationally but, world wide. This area of concern is in the handling of our solid waste disposal.

Each and every citizen generates solid waste for disposal. Each and every citizen is aware of the fact that this solid waste must be set out at the curbside so that it can be picked up and disposed of.

What would happen if there were no trucks coming through our neighborhoods to pick up our solid waste? What would happen if there was nowhere to dispose of our solid waste? We all hear of the groups that are saying, "you cannot incinerate this waste because you are polluting the atmosphere" or, "you cannot bury this waste because you are polluting the water".

Have any of these groups come up with an answer as to how we are to handle the disposal of these wastes? There are only two ultimate alternatives available to us, i.e., incinerate it or bury it.

Since 1964, the residents of our cities have been most fortunate. There has been no need for concern in this matter because our city fathers had the foresight, many years ago, to recognize the problem and banded together to form the Central Wayne County Sanitation Authority, an incinerator plant for disposal of the solid waste generated in our cities.

Our incinerator plant has disposed of approximately three million tons of solid waste, more than any other existing incineraor plant in the country. Each and every resident of our cities has an interest in this plant which was built and operated by tax dollars, well spent for the preservation of the health and well being of each and every one of us, well spent for our ability to control the disposal of our solid waste.

The incinerator plant ceased operation of its furnaces on December 31, 1982, by court order, due to the fact that we were in non-compliance with the Wayne County Air Pollution Code. Our furnaces must be up-dated with new air pollution control equipment which will enable us to comply with the existing air pollution codes. To do this will cost additional dollars from each and every one of us. To not do this could cost each and every one of us far more than dollars.

We must not bury our solid waste. To do this is equivalent to "burying our heads in the sand". What problems are we creating for future generations? The landfills in our area will be filled to capacity in approximately 8 years.

Would they possibly have already been filled to capacity if we had not burned our solid waste for 19 years? Where will new landfills be located? Will our cities agree to open up landfills for the disposal of solid wastes from other cities? Will other cities agree to open up landfills for the disposal of our solid wastes? These questions must be addressed without delay.

Daily, we are reading of communities fighting against the opening up of new landfills. The people in the North are saying, "bury it in the South", the people in the South are saying, "bury it in the North". It is exasperating to be faced with a problem over which we have no control, however, the residents of our cities have had control of their solid waste disposal for 20 years.

We cannot relinquish this control! We must all do whatever is necessary to obtain the necessary financing to equip our furnaces to enable us to maintain that control by continuing to dispose of our solid waste by incineration. To cover the cost over the next 30 years, there are three options to consider:

1. Equip two of our three furnaces with the necessary new air pollution control equipment which would amount to approximately $3.50 per person per year.

2. Equip all three furnaces with the necessary new air pollution control equipment and install boilers to produce steam and generate electricity. We have the potential of generating electricity equivalent to the entire electrical needs of a city the size of the City of Inkster.

The cost, of course, would be much higher than the cost for installing just the necessary new air pollution control equipment, however, the benefits could be far greater inasmuch as we would then have income from the sale of the steam and electricity as well as the conservation of our natural resources. This would amount to approximately $21.60 per person per year.

3. Equip all three furnaces with the necessary new air pollution control equipment with provision for the addition of the boilers, to produce steam and generate electricity, at a later time. This would amount to approximately $5.20 per person per year.

The choice is yours! Each and everyone of us generate solid wastes. Each and everyone of us has done our share to control the disposition of our solid waste for 20 years. Let's continue to do our share to control the disposition of our solid waste through incineration, a method which has proved successful for 19 years. Let's get our furnaces operating again! The benefits far outweigh the disadvantages!

Anthropologists tell us of the life chain and how the adult/child roles change to adult-to-adult and then through age or illness, the day arrives when we all become child-like and require care by others.

I prefer to remember Dad strong in mind and body, and always ready to listen to my problems and those of others, and always willing to suggest plausible solutions.

I often turned my head to his advice, usually to my regret. But I learned from each encounter with him, whether positive or negative. He was, to me and to many others, a great man who I miss and think of often. I wonder how my life might be different if he were still here with me.

Happy Birthday, Dad.

Primary notes

Post primary '84:

OOPS — Every election year editorial writers urge an apathetic electorate to vote as an expression of their God-given, inalienable right. "Take part in the democratic process," we cajole.

Then Gerald Carlson of Wayne gets nominated as the Republican candidate for U.S. representative in the 15th District. Now I wish that 5,107 persons had given in to the power of apathy. Didn't they have anything better to do than to go and vote? Surely they could have found a better use for their time.

Carlson is the candidate of the "forgotten European (white) minorities." Last Thursday he attempted to convince me that I qualified as an abused soul due to my Polish-Bulgarian ancestry. It's about time someone stood up to the Polish-Bulgarian bigots of this universe!

The media has been quite specific in labelling Carlson a "Klan figure," "Nazi," "racist," and other even less flattering terms. Since bursting on the political scene in 1980, however, Carlson has managed to attract enough supporters to win primaries in 1980 and last week.

Obviously he has struck a responsive nerve out there. Unfortunately.

ROUT — No one, to my knowledge, anticipated the result of the Justine Barns vs. Vince Petitpren battle in the 38th District. Barns, the Democrat incumbent, was favored to retain her seat but her 3-to-1 victory margin surprised a lot of people in Westland.

Petitpren, a former state representative and school board member, ran an aggressive campaign stressing Barns' vote for the state tax increase and support of state-financed abortions. It didn't work.

Is support for Barns stronger than anyone imagined? Or has the name 'Petitpren' been involved in one too many controversies through the years, notably in relation to his publicized term as superintendent of schools in Taylor?

SATISFACTION — Wayne County Executive Bill Lucas must still be smiling. Voters overwhelmingly approved two measures — mill renewal and road commission abolishment — that he had campaigned for.

Rarely has a politician attracted the support Lucas has in such a short time on the job. Party and labor bosses find him aloof and uncontrollable. Public sentiment seems to be on his side as he continues to shake up the "but-we've-always-done-it-this-way" cronies in County government.

Popular or not, Lucas didn't get his way in the 12th District where incumbent Kay Beard defeated Mary Markowicz. Beard often makes life miserable for the executive and that isn't all bad.

UNBELIEVABLE — Huron Township Clerk Mary Lou Carey has survived more than a few scares, including a recall attempt, during her long tenure in public office. She did not survive the challenge of Doris Davis, however.

Davis won the Democratic primary for clerk last week by three votes. To date Carey has not demanded a recount.

It hasn't been a good year for Carey. Her attempt to win a seat in the State House (21st District) also came up short.

PARTY TIME — The most interesting political fight seems to be shaping up in Van Buren Township as the Republican candidates seek to unseat a number of Democratic incumbents in November.

This should prompt a larger than normal voter turnout, possibly the highest in township history.

munity and I appreciate having a police station in the community, close by and able to respond quickly if needed.

I have nothing against Mr. Lewis and am not qualified to judge his qualifications. Nevertheless I feel that an officer should be promoted through the ranks in such a situation, if possible. A political appointment, which this one seems to be, should be foreseen as a cause of resentment on the police force and avoided to protect the morale of the officers who seem to be well qualified and to show that as a community we stand behind them 100 percent.

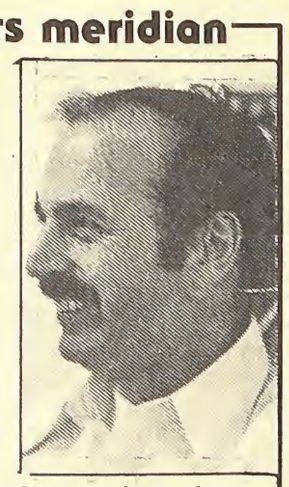
Getting ready for grid season



Tom Mooradian

Let's tie up some loose ends to clear the way for the 1984 High School Football Season.

First, this letter ...

Dear Mr. Mooradian:

The City of Westland has every right to be proud of the Westland Federation Reese Baseball team. This team has posted a remarkable 30-2 won-lost record before entering state-wide and national competition.

Recently, the young ball club traveled to Battle Creek for the district tourney and came away with their third hampionship of this season. And they also earned a berth for the regional tournament conducted in Sterling Heights.

Undefeated in Sterling Heights where they stopped the Macomb County's Angels 11-6; Windsor 13-4, Southgate, 6-3, and edged the host, Sterling Heights 4-3 and 10-8, the Westlanders won the right to advance to the national championships.

With community support, we traveled to Atlanta, Georgia where "lady luck" turned her back on us and we lost the first game to Kingsport. Tenn., 7-5 and was ousted from the World Series by Brooklyn, New York, 9-7.

The two losses left the Westland Reese club with a 39-4 over-all record. We finished sixth in the world out of 1,100 teams who started the tournament in July.

And that isn't bad at all.

Sincerely,
Joe Cooley, Manager

Although he didn't receive any local press, another stalwart athlete who many will read about in the months and years to come is Joel Smith of Romulus.

Joel, who is following in the footsteps of "big brothers" Brad and Virgil, was recently named to the All-American High School Wrestling Team. His credentials for the coveted award are impeccable.

During the 1984 prep season, Smith, as a 138-pounder, won all 50 of his matches en route to a Class D state crown. He also captured the state title at 132 after wrestling his way to a 38-2-1 over-all record as a member of the Detroit Bethesda team. In 1982, this remarkable young man finished with a 43-1 record at the 119-pound weight class.

Named to "Team Michigan" in 1983 and the Michigan Wrestling All-Stars this year, Joel had excellent examples to follow. Both older brothers — Brad and Virgil — were all-staters while Brad earned international acclaim on the mats, competing for the U.S. Junior Olympic Team in the Soviet Union in the mid-60's.

Not only does Joel star on the mats, but in the classroom as well. He was his class president for three years and has been inducted in the National Honor Society.

This year Smith will attend Eastern Michigan University and will compete as a 142-pounder.

Don't be surprised if Joel Smith joins Earl Jones as an Olympian when the world athletes gather in Korea in 1988.

Dolphins repeat as swimming champions

The Wayne Recreation Swim Club (pictured above) captured the 10-team Downriver Swimming Championship staged at the Allen Park-Park Colonz. Wayne came away with 1,064 points; Taylor had 792, followed by Flat Rock 733, Wyandotte 704, Park Colonz 670, Plymouth 591, Southgate 533, Dearborn 415, Trenton 306, and Lincoln Park 94. Wayne took 10 first places: 8 and under girls 100-yard freestyle relay with Lyndi Paling, Sonya Sims, Cindy King, Amy Work; 15-18 girls 200 medley relay: Rhonda Graham, Carrie Basner, Lia Jaquette and Shelly Conley. The Dolphins also had winners with Amy Work, in the 8-under 25-yard breaststroke; Dana Walls, 9-10 girls 50-yard breaststroke; Carrie Basner, 15-18 girls 100-yard breaststroke; Vicki King, 15-18 girls 50-yard freestyle; Amy Work, 8-under 25-yard backstroke; Denet Tompkins, 13 & 14 girls 50-yard breaststroke; Rhonda Graham, 15-18 girls 100-yard freestyle; Steve Kroll, 9-10 boys 50-yard backstroke. The Dolphins finished their summer program with a banquet at the Recreation Center and presented Most Improved Swimmers awards to: Matt Ferguson, 8-and-under boys; Lyndi Paling, 8-and-under girls; Michele Adkins, 9-10 boys; Sandy Eckhart, 9-10 girls; John Adkins, 11-12 boys, Hope Was, 11-12 girls; Tim Adkins, 13-14 boys; Denet Tompkins, 13-14 girls; David Graham, 15-18 boys and Carrie Basner, 15-18 girls. The Dolphins are coached by Jim McPartlin and Randy Ferguson.

It's 'playoff time' in Romulus

It's "playoff time" in the Romulus Recreation softball leagues.

With the regular season behind them, the seven leagues will compete for playoff titles beginning on Saturday and league leaders Kegs (Resident B), Angies (Women's B), Nemo's (Men's A), Fighting Flirts (Women's A), Precision Tune (Men's Friday A Open), The Family (Men's Friday B Open), and Walter's Appliance (Sunday's Men's League) are favored to capture the post season honors.In the meantime, Nemo's managed to eke out a narrow 7-5 victory over the fifth place I-94 Shell as the Class A frontrunner erupted for five runs in the bottom of the fifth to salt away its 15th win in 19 starts.

Mel Allen and Rog Hudyniak paced the winners with a double and two singles, respectively. Winning pitcher Jay Barton gave up eight hits, a pair of singles to Mark Carr.

Mag Media carded its 12th trimph of the campaign at the expense of the last place Michlein club 16-6 as Bill Hunt and Tom Zbikowski split six hits between them. Hunt hammered a homer and a pair of singles which led to three runs batted in. Zbikowski had two RBIs and duplicated Hunt's efforts at the plate.

Winner Randy Hall served up a triple and two RBIs to Tom Johnson while Keith Korpczuk sliced a couple of singles.

In the only other "A" match-up, Mad Anthony's padded its record to 15-5 with a 7-1 victory over Walter's Bar. Jamie Hinojosa rapped seven hits while Carl Glaser had a single and double and Glenn Boyner finished with a pair of singles off of losers Dave Staten and Steve Bird. Bird tripled in Walter Bar's lone run.

Over in the Sunday Men's League, pacesetter Walter Appliances came up with five runs in the sixth inning to escape runner-up, NAPA, 7-6. NAPA held a 5-2 edge going into the sixth frame. Mike Terry accounted for three RBIs and Jim Dexter latched on to two singles for the winners while Bill Hunt and Mark Bratcher accounted for four hits for the losers.

Landing Strip pounded out 17 hits and a 11-2 victory over Sun and Snow to edge over the .500 mark (6-5) for the season. Dennis Osborne drilled three singles and Tom Zbikowski had a single and double and three RBIs off of a pair of Sun & Snow pitchers, Wes Jager and Don Klemmer. Jager checked in with a homer and single off of winner Keith McArthur.

Angie's and B & F Produce are slugging it out for the Women's Resident B title. Each has amassed 17-4 regular season records. Angie's held on to its share of first place with a 6-2 win over All-Around. Scoring five runs in the first inning, the league co-leader had its problems getting on the scoreboard after the first inning.

Lora Umin and Gail Blanchard collected three and two hits respectively off of losing pitcher Beckey Parr while Umin, who tossed a seven-hitter for the win, gave up a pair of singles to Debbie Kitchens.

B & F meantime scored five times in the first and widened the lead to 10-0 in the second en route to a 15-6 victory over Middlebelt. Tracy Barnett homered and turned in with two singles for the winners.

Doreen Lossaino sliced three hits while Collen Young and Judy Kwek, each with three RBIs, also collected two hits.

Carol Minda, the winning pitcher, gave up a roundtripper and single to Debbie Rakozy who also had three RBIs.

Bilmar's dropped a 19-10 slugfest to Coughlin as the winners pounded out 21 hits. Delphine Juliano and Sandy Plave each accounted for homers for the winners. Sandy also had five RBIs and three singles while teammate Dawn Hill laced three singles and checked in with trhree RIBs.

Linda Ward homered and carded three runs batted in and Nina Humphrey had a pair of RBIs thanks to a single and sacrifice fly.

The third place Waligorski Roofing stayed in the midst of the title chase thanks to a come-from-behind 14-4 win over Bilmar's Lori Grazak led the winners with three singles and three RBIs. The losers got a pair of singles from Humphrey and two RBIs from Lisa White.

After Suburban made it a 14-7 game for four complete innings, Middlebelt exploded for seven decisive runs in the fifth and added an insurance run in the sixth. Robin Marken drilled two homers and singled for three RBIs for the winners. Mates Sue Dyer and Jammie Russol each homered with Dyer collecting four RBIs.

Shari Esper, the winning pitcher, was tagged for two singles apiece by Cindy Cox and Joyce Evans.

A sports revival in Detroit?

The Detroit sports teams are finally giving their fans something to cheer about and ... better times may be ahead.

Let's start with the "Bless you Boys". The Detroit Tigers ball club.

The Tigers got off to a fabulous start and although they are not in a slump now, they should win the American League East title with room to spare. From there, who knows! (The Shadow does, but he just isn't talking).

Detroit has the best team in the AL. by far. However, because the playoffs are just a best of five series, anything can happen. And it usually does. If they do get by, the world championship can be theirs. And ours.

I truly believe that the A.L. has surpassed the Senior Circuit in talent.

The only team that could challenge the Bengals is San Diego, but man for man, the Tigers are much better. I think this is the Year the World Championship Flag will fly at Tiger Stadium.

Now the Lions.

After a terrible start in 1983 (1-4) they recovered and won the weak Central Division last season. This year they should repeat. They needed a tight end and got one in David Lewis, their first round draft choice. A lot of people thought Detroit should have drafted a quarterback, but there was no one in the draft who could have stepped in to lead this team, and do the job better than Gary Danielson and Eric Hipple. Now, who will be the No. 1 signal caller? I think Hipple. They say it takes five years to become a good pro quarterback. Well, this is Hipple's fifth season and I have a hunch he's going to have a good season. The Lions can win the division but to go anywhere in the playoffs, the Lions have to get better quarterbacking than they have in recent years.

Now to the Pistons.

Last season they came within one game of winning their division. They won 49 games, the most for the team since they came to Detroit 27 years ago. This season the Pistons should win the division in a breeze. The weak points of a year ago, defense, lack of a post up player, and shot blocker have been solved with one move. Getting Dan Roundfield from Atlanta makes this team much better. In fact, if the Pistons sign their free agents, (Kelly Tripuka, Vinnie Johnson and John Long) they have a chance, even though it's a small one, to win the National Basketball Association Championship. Roundfield is a good rebounder and scorer as well as being a good inside player and shot blocker. He's also made the N.B.A. all defense team.

Now the Red Wings.

Last season they finished in third place but sub .500 — the worst division in hockey. This year's team is better and should win more games but will find it tougher to finish as high.

Chicago is a better team that it showed last season and Toronto has to be better, don't they?

Everybody wants to know which goalie the Wings will trade. Greg Steffan, no doubt is the no. 1 netminder and he'll stay. The other two: Ed Mio and Corrado Micalef are good goalies, too, but one has to go or he'll be lost in the draft. The Wings are fining the other two don't have much value, despite their ability. Whoever brings the most in return will be gone. Look for the Red Wings to have a better year, but probably finish 4th. It's still the playoffs.

Grzybek teams up with Greene

Lofton Greene, the former River Rouge coaching great, will be making his coaching debut at University of Michigan-Dearborn campus this season with an ex-Livonia Churchill cage star in his line-up.

Greene, the legendary prep basketball coach who led Rouge to 12 Class B title, has recruited John Grzybek, a 6-foot-3 forward from Churchill.

"John is a heads-up player," Greene said. "He will undoubtedly see some playing time this year but I expect him to help us a great deal in years to come.

Cyndi Lauper vs. Capt. Albano

Contrary to rumors, the biggest musical event of the summer is not the Michael Jackson tour, nor the Bruce Springsteen tour. It is, undoubtedly, the feud that has erupted between Cyndi Lauper ("Girls Just Want to Have Fun," "Time After Time," "She Bop") and professional wrestling guru Captain Lou Albano.

Albano has appeared in all three of Lauper's videos, which seemed to lend credence to the Captain's claim that he not only managed her, but also is responsible for her rise to stardom. "I made Cyndi Lauper, I made her a star, I put her on magazine covers, I directed the videos, I made MTV play them, she was a nothing, I made her, you her me? I made Cyndi Lauper!" So says the good Captain, on the cable wrestling interlude "Piper's Pit," wherein Rowdy Piper berates the good guys and praises the bad.

Albano, who seems to like wearing rubber bands taped or glued to his unshaven face, is one of the bad ones.

The trouble started when Albano failed to get Lauper on the show (and Piper was even wearing a plastic clothespin in his ear to fit in with the "punkers" (sic) like Cyndi). Albano explained that she had missed her plane. When she finally appeared weeks later (these wrestling guys know how to drag things out even longer than soap operas do), she appeared so taken aback at Albano's statements that she started hitting the two with her purse.

Then, it blossomed.

"I'm not only going to prove to the world that Captain Lou Albano doesn't know anything about music, but knows even less about wrestling!

Looking directly into the camera in the best Big-Time Wrestling tradition, she said: "Okay, fat man. I challenge you. You can get any woman wrestler in the world, and I'll find one to manage, and, I'll tell ya FAT man, we'll win."

Albano said "I wrote the words to 'Girls Just Want to Have Fun,' it was me!"

Lauper said of Albano: "The man is a amoeba!"

MTV recently carried the match live from Madison Square Garden. Cable stations were there, networks were there. I wasn't there. Lauper's wrestler was a Texan named Wendy Rickter. Albano got the champ, an old, decrepid hasbeen who just happened to be the world champion: the Fabulous Moohlah.

It was history in the making.

All the things that make professional wrestling great were in evidence at the match: a ref that always looked the wrong way at the wrong times, outside interference, cheating, etc. (which brings up a point about so-called olympic wrestling. That's not wrestling! Where are the managers, the masks, the foreign objects hidden in the trunks!?!)

Lauper bopped Moohlah right in the chin at one point, and Albano attempted to return the favor, but missed and fell under his own considerable weight. Later, Albano yelled "No, no, I didn't try and hit her! It was an optical illusion!"

Rickter emerged victorous as the new champ. Moohlah dropkicked the ref. Albano screamed. I laughed. Albano explained: "First, let me say that I WAS NOT Moohlah's manager. I was a technical advisor. Anytime you're involved with a woman, you're going to be a loser ... they should be barefoot and pregnant and home where they belong! If you took a parakeet and put the brains of a female in it, ZOOM! It'd fly backwards!"

Paging Gloria Steinem ...

The new champ, who cultivates a Rebecca of Sunnybrook Farm image, smiled and kissed the tag-team managed by Albano, The Wild Samoans. "I shoulda been invited! I shoulda been at the party! It's a plot! My Samoans are there! . . ."

Where will it all end? Probably in a rematch, because never has wrestling had a shot in the arm like this one, because Lauper has openly admitted loving the "sport," and because ... the girl just wants to have fun!

As I said earlier, Michael Jackson may be a good singer, but so is Cyndi Lauper. And I bet Jackson couldn't manage a wrestler worth beans ...

Jackson party slated

A Michael Jackson Victory Tour celebration will be featured from 9 p.m. until 1 a.m. Friday at the Skateland West Roller Skating Center, 37550 Cherry Hill in Westland. A trip for two to the Jacksons' concert at the Silverdome will be given away during the affair.

Willie G., a Michael Jackson imitator, will perform at 11:30 p.m. Admission to the party is $4.

Cat show set this weekend

Sheila Gira of Romulus will exhibit the Norwegian Forest Cat breed as one of the features of the 60th Mid-Michigan Cat Fanciers' Cat Show, scheduled from 9 a.m. until 6 p.m. Saturday and 9 a.m. till 5 p.m. Sunday at the Hyatt Regency in Dearborn.

More than 500 prize cats from across the country will compete for awards. Tickets are priced at $3 for adults and $1 for children and senior citizens.

Millionaire Monty Brewster (left), portrayed by Henry Bennett of Romulus, gives $250,000 in cash to the bank president, played by Lewis Sequin, in a scene from "Brewster's Millions." The 1924 comedy is featured on Friday and Saturday evenings through Sept. 8 at the Henry Ford Museum Theater.

Bennett stars in stage comedy

Henry Bennett of Romulus is cast as the title character in the Greenfield Village Theatre Company production of "Brewster's Millions," featured at 8:30 p.m. Fridays and Saturdays through Sept. 8 at the Henry Ford Museum Theater.

Bennett portrays Montgomery Brewster, a man with an unusual dilemma. About to enjoy a life of leisure with a $1 million inheritance from his late grandfather, he learns of a greater fortune bequeathed to him by his late uncle. The problem is, his uncle heated his grandfather, forcing Brewster to meet an uneasy condition to assume the uncle's $7 million.

Brewster must dispense the entire $1 million from his grandfather in one year but he must not make any excessive donations and he must keep receipts while not sharing the scheme with anyone.

Written by Winchell Smith and Byron Ongley, "Brewster's Millions" was a best-selling novel in 1924 and was adapted several times for stage and screen.

Bennett is making his eighth appearance on the Henry Ford stage, having previously performed in "Naughty Anthony," "Shenandoah" and "Our American Cousin."

Tickets, priced at $5, are available daily at the entrance to Greenfield Village or at the theater box office one hour prior to each performance. All seats are reserved. Dinner theater packages are available (call 271-1620 for reservations.).

2 plays offered

The Theatre Guild of Livonia-Redford will present two one-act plays, "Whiskey" and "Impromptu," at 8 p.m. Aug. 17 and 18, 24 and 25 at the Guild Playhouse, 15138 Beech Daly in Redford. Admission is $2.50.

AUTOMOBILE COMPANIES CAN PRODUCE LEMONS!!

I want you to help me write a letter to a car company. We, my partner and I, had a terrible time recently with a 1982 truck. I feel they should remiburse us for the money we had to spend.

Sincerely, MO

Dear Automobile Company:

This letter is a reiteration of a chain of events relating to a 1982 truck. I am a principle in a California-based Corporation. The above-referenced truck was purchased to be used to haul automobiles in our business.

In September of 1983, while the truck was under warranty, we began to experience coolant-loss difficulties. The truck was taken to a Chevrolet dealership in Detroit on Sept. 6, 1983 to secure the requisite repairs. The dealership kept the truck in their possession until Sept. 26, 1983. When the truck was picked up, the dealership had replaced both heads, gaskets, one injector and had set the timing on the vehicle. On Sept. 26, 1983, the truck had 22,037 miles on the odometer. The service personnel at the dealership informed us that they had been unable to determine the cause of the coolant loss, however, they indicated that the heads were cracked, resulting in coolant being driven from the system. There was no explanation offered as to why the heads were cracked.

On or about Dec. 21, 1983, we departed from the Detroit metropolitan area with a final destination of California. The truck odometer reflected approximately 23,000 miles. The truck was loaded with household funiture and furnishings and a utility trailer on the back.

Our trip ended on the same day, just north of Cincinnati, when the coolant problem returned. After a brief stop in Anna Ohio, we limped into Cincinnati. We were unable to store our load and, therefore, unable to leave the truck in Anna for repairs.

On the same day, we stored our load and left the truck at a dealership in Ohio for repairs. We boarded a commercial airliner and departed for California.

Please Note: The Night Service Manager at the Cincinnati dealership was extremely rude and uncooperative. He exhibited a hostile attitude and refused to help us secure transportation to the airport.

After disassembly of the truck engine in Cincinnati, we were informed that the head gaskets were blown, which was causing the present coolant loss. The Service Manager further explained that the cause of the faulty head gaskets was an improper installation when the heads were originally replaced in Michigan. In addition, we were informed that foreign matter was left on the block, the torque on the hind bolts was improper and the timing was set incorrectly. We presently own a $25,000 truck that we cannot use for its intended purpose.

My partner and I have owned dozens of vehicles manufactured by your company and, at this time, collectively own seven of your automobiles/vehicles. As you can readily see, we have been the victims of a very troublesome and expensive situation.

In addition to the frustration and harrassment caused by these events, we have suffered an enormous amount of financial loss, out of pocket as well as lost dollars in our corporation's business. A breakdown of costs incurred, including load storage, airfare to California, telephone, motel bills, taxi fares, fuel, food and lodging, lost wages and corporation losses total $12,261.26. We have enclosed supporting documentation.

We would appreciate a prompt response toward an amicable resolution of this matter. If we do not hear from you within a five-day period, we shall seek legal counsel.

Sincerely, MO

RESOLUTION: Within less than five days, this automobile manufacturer contacted MO and indicated a willingness to rectify this problem.
